Library Policies

Use of the Library

Boston Library. According to Local Rule 46(d): “The law library of this court shall be open to members of the Bar, to the United States Attorneys of the Circuit and their assistants, to other law officers of the government, and persons having a case in this court, but books may be removed only by government employees, who shall sign therefor.” Members of the general public may also use the library, but will have no borrowing privileges. Any person from the designated categories may use the library, provided that he/she abides by the library rules and behaves in an orderly manner. The Boston library is located on the 9th floor of the John Joseph Moakley United States Courthouse.

Everyone using the library is asked to sign in/out in the book located on the circulation desk

Hours. Public patrons may use the library from 9:00 to 4:00 Monday through Friday. Courthouse personnel who have building access keys may use the library after hours, entering and exiting through the internal doors.

Branch Libraries. There are three branch libraries in the Circuit. These are located in the District Court courthouses in Concord, NH, Hato Rey, PR, and Providence, RI. They are presently open only to court personnel.

All items in the library are the property of the United States Government. Any damaging or defacing of books, furniture or equipment is a serious offense, and action will be taken accordingly.

Telephones. Quiet cell phone use is permitted. If a cell phone conversation is disturbing staff or patrons, the caller will be asked to take the phone outside the library.

Public Access Computers. The library has 7 public access computer workstations for the use of public patrons and court staff. These provide access to the internet and word-processing. Patrons are expected to provide any paper needed for printing. Library staff keep a log of users of the PAC's and may prescribe time limitations on use for administrative reasons (e.g., in anticipation of closing, to allow maintenance work on the computer, or to allow other patrons a chance to use the PAC). The standard daily time limit is two hours.

Laptop Computers in the Library. Court personnel and government attorneys may bring their laptops to the library. There is free wireless service available. Persons from outside the court are welcome to bring a laptop computer to the library, but should call ahead to seek assistance of a library staff member. The staff member will prepare the necessary form and see that it reaches the court security officers at the entrance to the building. You will then be allowed to bring your laptop through security.

Library Rules.

1. Library material may not be checked out by non-court/non-government employees. Material may be copied at the library's public photocopier. An inter-library loan request from a member of the professional library community will be honored..
2. Only court employees and federal defenders are permitted to use the library after hours.
3. Everyone is required to reshelve the books he/she has used or is returning to the library.
4. New student interns, law clerks and Assistant U.S. Attorneys will introduce themselves to the library staff and have a brief tour before being permitted to use the library.
5. No eating or drinking is permitted in the library.

Circulation. Only federal employees are permitted to check out books. The circulation period to chambers varies, depending upon location. Books to other (non-court) federal employees are checked out for three days. Material should be photocopied and the books returned. The library lends through interlibrary loan to other government, academic, law firm, and public libraries.

With the approval of a librarian, an attorney may check out a book to be taken to a courtroom. A driver's license (or other appropriate picture ID) is required, to be left at the circulation desk until the item is returned. Pro se litigants may not remove books from the library.

Photocopying. The coin-operated photocopier in the west wing of the library is not a court machine, but is available for the use of the public. Copies are $.50 each. The copier will take coins and bills up to $10.00.
